Laughing their hearts out, Erica Johnston and Jaime Gilbert enjoy talking with each other in between pep assemblies.

Getting a little advice from the lady in charge, David Matthews converses with one of our new assistant principals, Mrs. Lamberton.

Taking time off from their daily duties, Mr. Jones and Ms. Moore commend each other on their ties.

JUST ONE DIFFERENCE!

"JUST ONE MOMENT, WHAT HAPPENED?" Many students asked as they returned to start the new school year. A new school appearance was the eye-catching event as the students and teachers entered the building. The new appearance was of the lighting in the hallway and fresh white paint on the walls. That was not the only change. The other change was of the new faces seen on the administration in the office. The faces were of the new principal, Mr. Evans, and the two new assistant principals, Mr. Johnston and Mrs. Lambertson. Along with the faces and appearances, Kara Streaker was #1 in the district for her outstanding ability in tennis and Brian Tunstall was acknowledged for his placement in the district for cross country. Catherine Winfrey was named National Merit Scholarship Commended Student for our school. It can truly be said that our year was a special part of our life. Just one moment that we will cherish forever.

Smiling with enthusiasm, Kara Streaker enjoys her moment in the spotlight as the J.V. and Varsity cheerleaders dedicate a cheer to her for her outstanding ability in tennis.

Time to chat with friends and get organized

Student life revolved around a variety of things such as school, clubs, weekends, and team practices. All students had to deal with academic pressures. It never let up! From September to June students worried about homework, tests, papers, projects, and exams. Everyone was relieved when the bell sounded at 2:00. For a lot of students that wasn't the end of their school day. They had to stay after for clubs and sports. Many students who participated in clubs gave an hour once a week and sometimes a few hours on the weekends. People who played sports spent long hours after school practicing hard. Many teams started practice in the summer or held weekend practices. Dedicated students gave up a lot of hours supporting our school. Most students couldn't wait for the weekend to arrive. Some people spent their weekends going to athletic events. The weekend gave others that extra time for studying. The majority of students spent their time hanging with their friends or just relaxing.

Looking through a crowded hallway between classes, Chrystal Barnes turns to see who is calling her name.

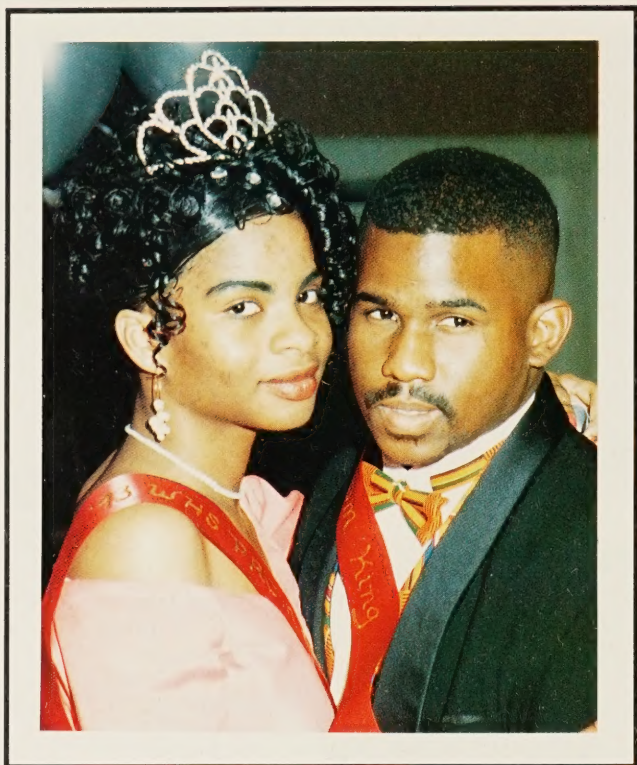

Students spent much of their free time on the phones as Crystal Tunstall shows as she is rushing between classes.

Coming back from a field trip, Chaunnie Venable and Mark Mears take their time getting back to class.

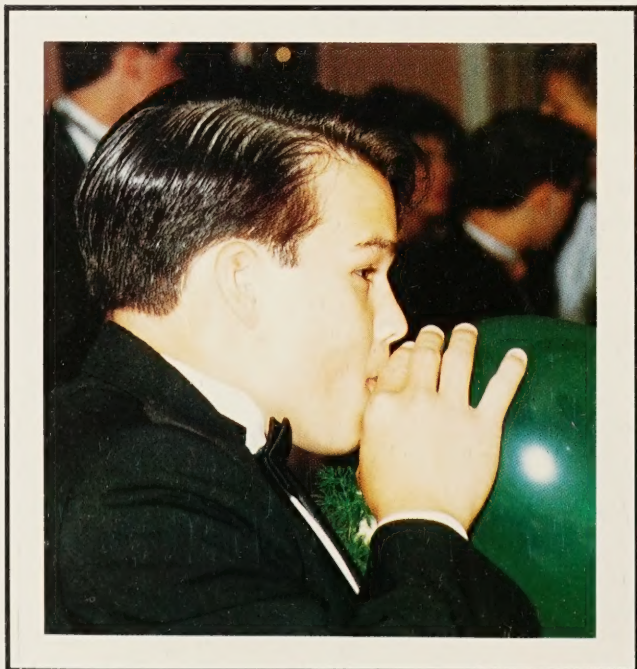

Stopping at his locker before sixth period, Richard Bandy hurries to get his books so he won't be late for class.

Saving the best for last

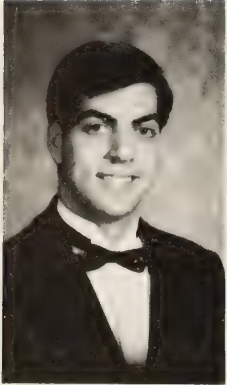

The 1993 prom took place at the Ft. Eustis Officers' Club on the night of May 21. This was a time to celebrate all the accomplishments and the fact that the seniors were graduating. The class song was "Save the Best for Last" by Vanessa Williams. The prom colors were emerald green and silver. As the night proceeded, it was time to announce the prom king and queen out of eight court members. Turquesa Hanks and Reggie Alston were crowned. Brett Lewis said, "Prom was great, and I feel that most of us enjoyed it. It was a time for us to reminisce about the past four years and to spend time with others before we all graduate."

End Of The Road

1993 Valedictorian,
Clay Lambiotte

The graduation of 1993 was a successful event. Several of the students were nervous about leaving high school and entering the new world. But some students were excited about finally leaving school.

Most of the students know where they are going and what they are going to do. And then some don't, but they all know one thing, they have reached the End Of The Road.

Graduates anxiously await to receive their diplomas.

Chillin' during the summer heat!

Summer vacation . . . two-and-a-half months of no books, locker troubles, or tardy slips. Summer also brings two-and-a-half months of not having to worry about report cards or getting to class on time. When asked how she felt about her summer vacation, Chrissy Beattie said, "I had fun, but it was too short".

Some students started taking "Summer Vacations" before school even let out for the summer. Students visited places like Kings Dominion or Busch Gardens, once school finally did let out for the summer.

While hanging out at the beach, William Clark looks as though he's never seen a camera before!

Soaked to the bone, Tammy Boone and her sister Angela look as though they definitely know why the people at Bush Gardens call the Roman Rapids "Splashus Maximus"!

Obviously looking as though they've had the time of their lives, Liane Atkins and David Matthews ham it up for the camera in front of the Anaconda roller coaster in Hurricane Reef at Kings Dominion.

It looks as though just because Dave Saxton, Michelle Mullins, and Phillip Drane are at Kings Dominion doesn't mean someone's not going to "beep" them.

No Rain, Please!

On Saturday, October 30th, WHS was prepared to win, but due to blinding rain and a sea of mud on the field, the day's festivities were postponed. The game, which was played the following Monday, was won by a score of 41-9 against the Gloucester Dukes.

The NJROTC Colorguard escorted the Homecoming Court onto the field during halftime, and the band played their Homecoming show in the stands. Kenya Warren was crowned Homecoming Queen for '93-'94 by Mr. Evans, Principal. "I'm proud to have the opportunity to represent Warwick as Homecoming Queen," Kenya Warren said. "I want to thank everyone who supported me!" she added. Q. "What do you feel is the best part of Homecoming?"

A. "Seeing former students come back for the game and being able to reminisce about old times." Mr. Garner said.

"Celebrating if we win the game!", replied Jessica Jones, Sophomore.

"The best part of Homecoming is Spirit Week," Emanuel Yarborough told us. When asked why, he said, "You get to dress up and act crazy."

Junior Kristy Campbell replied, "The dance, because you can dress up, be pretty, and be with your guy."

"Everything, because it's the week when you can see all the spirit, the students and staff getting involved like one big family," Security Officer Shirley Anderson said.

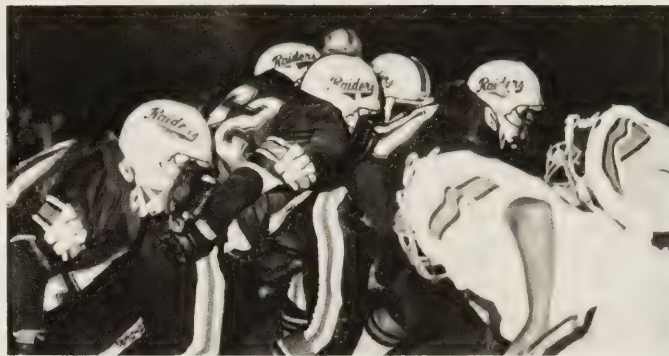

Some of the chosen few! The Homecoming Court shines at the dance. Kara Streker, Temeka Gales, Bernita Johnson, Merika Lewis, Felicia Holloway, Jobena Davis, and Chauntal Venable.

Homecoming Queen Kenya Warren smiles big as Mr. Evans escorts her off the field.

Midnight Masquerade

1993 Homecoming Queen, Kenya Brown, is crowned by Principal Mr. Evans.

Showing people how it is done, Amy Jacobs and Gary Kahler take over the dance floor.

Some students enjoyed the Homecoming Dance and some didn't. Donna Murray said, "It was a lot better than last year's."

Everyone loved the Homecoming Court and everyone enjoyed watching Kenya Brown get crowned Homecoming Queen. The dance was a successful event.

Bustin' a move, Ivy Jackson dances with Ebony Strickland and LaVern Carbin.

Dancing to a great beat are James Miller and Kesha Henderson.

Doing his Metallica impression, Brian Garmany entertains others.

The band plays on

"I think that the flag line is a big part of the band's overall look. When we do well at a performance it makes me proud because I know that all of our work has paid off. Flag line is a lot of hard work, but the applause and fun is worth it," Jennifer Waits said after the Menchville Monarch Marching Competition on October 9. The flag line tied for third place with Ferguson. The band received third place out of the seven bands they were competing against at their first competition. At the band's second, the Virginia State Marching Competition, the band received an excellent rating. The flags received a superior rating. This competition took place on October 30.

The band is larger this year. There are about 76 band members and there are 9 flag members. The band is under direction of Mr. Edward McClellan, and the drum majors are Karen Morgan, Carey Godwin, and Eugene Burke. The flag sponsor is Ms.

Linda Green.

"This year the band has demonstrated the first signs of discipline, responsibility, and commitment. Student leadership and teamwork have also played key roles in the band's success. Though the band is very young, there is great potential. With hard work and effort as well as individual responsibility, only good things will happen," Mr. McClellan said. All together the band practices 3 times a week. The brass practice on Tuesdays from 2:30-4:30; the woodwinds, percussion, and flags practice on Wednesdays from 2:30-4:30. Sometimes the flags practice is 3 times a week, on Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday when there is full band practice from 5:30-8:00. The band students have to arrive early before performances for football and competition to practice the show. Remember that the band also has concert season.

While in class 5th period, Travis Perry practices the song "Bang Bang."

One of the pit members, Elizabeth Riggs, practices her part while the band practices their sets.

Warming up the woodwinds, Mr. McClellan prepares the section for their Wednesday afternoon practice.

Conducting the song "Bang Bang," Eugene Burke tries not to laugh at the strange thing the band is doing on their 16 count to act crazy.

Dancing the Night Away!

Dance Line and Dance Elite members spend long hours of practice, under the instruction of Mrs. Fauntleroy, to put on good shows and other dance productions. Being successful in Dance Line or Dance Elite calls for grace, style, and coordination.

Each dance has to be technically perfect, with each dancer in sync with the next, and it also has to be the appropriate dance for the mood of the music. Knowing the music and underlying tones in the music is required of the dancers.

Dance Elite members Neya Jones, Eric Dowdy, Elizabeth Riggs, Torkeesha Henderson, Gabrielle Weber, and Martha Riggs perform "Dream in Color" for the Homecoming Assembly.

Dancing on stage is Eric Dowdy and Brooke Schubert.

Taking a break during rehearsal is Robert Reid. Dance Elite was rehearsing for the performance "Dream in Color," which was performed during the Homecoming Assembly.

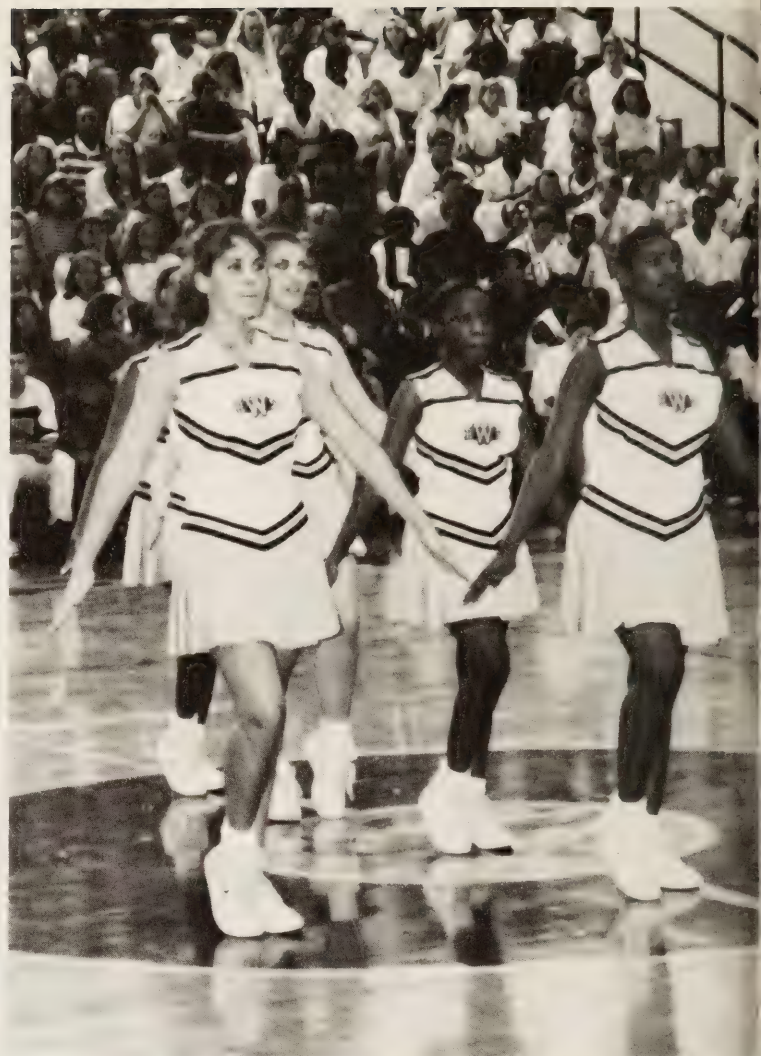

Rehearsing backstage before the Homecoming Assembly is Shanna Anderson.

The whole Dance Elite group performs on stage during the second Homecoming Assembly; the routine that they are performing is called "Dream in Color."

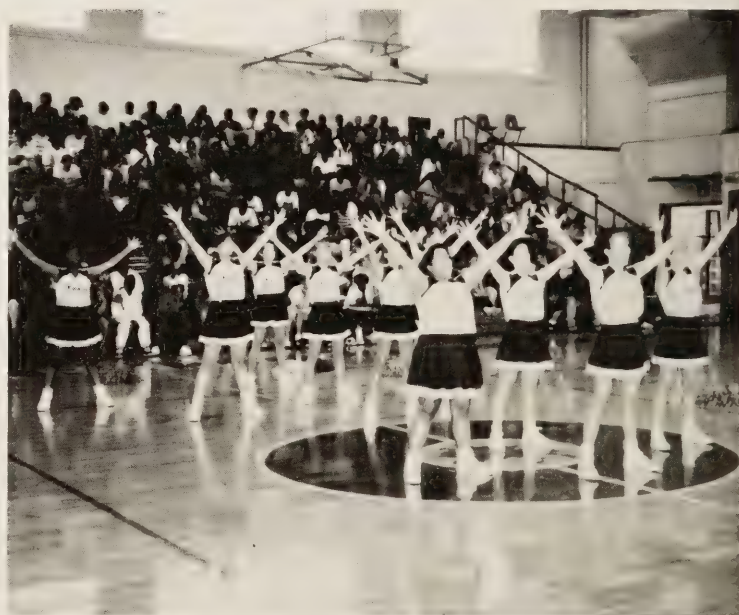

In perfect formation, Jennifer Emmett, Marika Lewis, Allison Molluck, Arnesa Bland, Tabitha Mason, Betina Joyner, and Jennifer Lyons present their pep rally routine.

Keeping the beat, Lamont Huffaker and Travis Perry lead the drum line.

Waiting to be recognized, the football players sit patiently.

Showing their school spirit: Tamara Wilson, Megan Dandois, Mary Dickinson, Mian Porter, Jennifer Onks, Summer Strickland, Meredith Broome, Chrystal Barnes, Barbie Dickens, and Brittany Barker encourage the upperclassmen to show their school spirit.

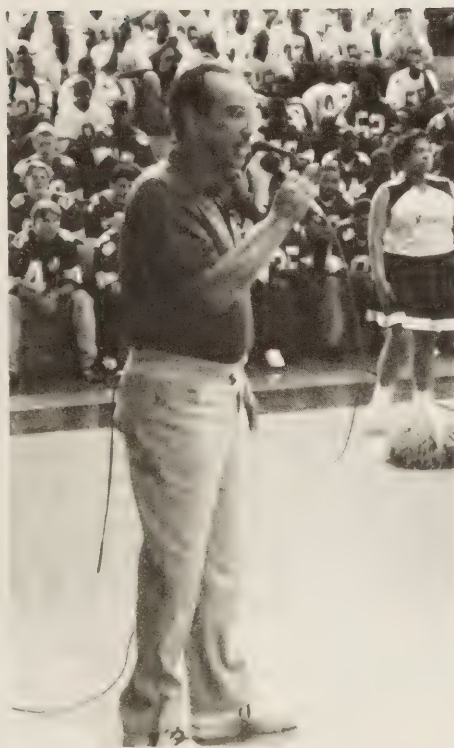

Screaming and stomping

The fall pep rallies involved dancing, cheering, and exhibiting spirit. Dexter Richardson served as the master of ceremonies. Encouraging speeches were made by Coach Lyons and Coach Peters, who requested the student body to attend more football games. Coach Lilley and the Boys' Cross Country team were recognized for excellence in their sport. Other fall sports were made mention of. "I think the pep rallies are more fun than last year" said Nicole Privette, a sophomore. Junior Daniel Griffin agreed: "I was really impressed with the formation of the WHS by the varsity cheerleaders."

Proudly singing the "Star Spangled Banner," Angela Welch, solo sopranoist, is backed up by the vocal ensemble.

Encouraging students to support their football team, Coach Lyons informs students of the upcoming events.

Creating a dance routine for Homecoming, Jennifer Onks, Mian Porter, and Meredith Broome attempt a dance at Megan Dandois' slumber party.

Performing at the first pep rally, Jennifer Emmett, Betina Joyner, Allison Molluck, and Arnesa Bland encourage the underclassmen to participate with spirit.

In perfect form, Summer Strickland hits a "Russian" as Jennifer Onks, Barbie Dickens, and Brittany Barker await her descent.

Keeping the spirit alive

Dominated by seniors, the varsity squad members believe it is the strongest the school has had in years. Summer Strickland said, "I believe one of the keys to our success is that we are not afraid to try new stunts." The junior varsity has received a lot of support from their big sisters on the varsity squad. "The varsity has helped all of us, veteran and newcomer, to improve," said Jennifer Lyons. The varsity and J.V. squads have spent many hours together at cheering camp as well as at slumber parties and practices. The squads learn more about themselves while building up flexibility, strength, and endurance. The members of the squads show that they work to keep the spirit alive.

Discussing the halftime for the upcoming football game, Mian Porter, Jennifer Onks, Mary Dickinson, Summer Strickland, and Brittany Barker stretch before practice.

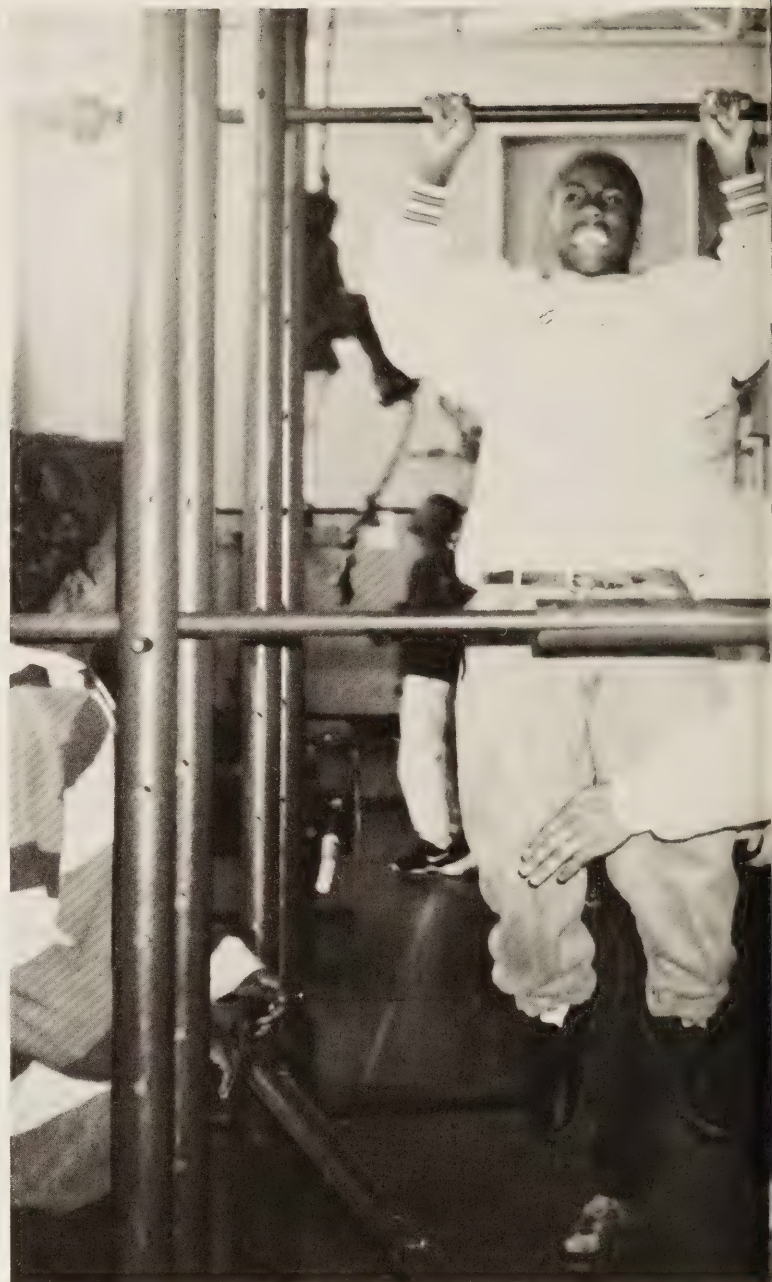

In a split catch, Jennifer Onks and Megan Dandois support Summer Strickland.

With Coach Moore's guidance, Corey Barnes strengthens his arms.

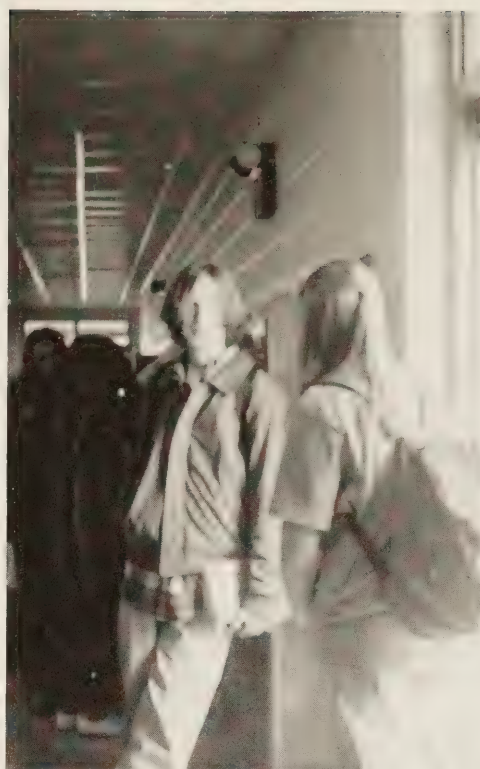

Eager to get home after a day of school, students rush for the doors to freedom.

Deciding on a Spanish Club piñata after school are Mrs. Hughes, Daniel Van Hause, Kelly Drye, and Kristy Campbell.

Using their study period wisely, Laneeka Byrd and Jerimiah Shaw hit the books.

Stopping a minute between classes, Gregory Womble and Daria Harris share a joke.

Taking advantage of the school's weight room, Laeva Warren tests her arm strength.

Sorting through loose change after school, Sharon Higgins decides what to buy from the snack machines.

Listening in on Kristie Taylor's phone conversation are Mary Dickenson and Michael Rose.

More Than Books

People have different opinions about the school's extra privileges. The snack machines, for instance, are things the school doesn't need, but gets for the student's benefit. Diane Draper says, "There are always long lines at the snack machines because the school's lunches aren't that good." Connie Brown says, about the phones, "I never use them because everyone is always on them." Laura Camacho feels that,

"They're not in as much use as last year, although they're very useful." "It's not as crowded as last year," says Christine Cuffe of the school's weight room.

Lunch time is used as a social hour, according to Brian Morgan, who says, "During lunch I sit and talk with my friends." Jennifer Waits agrees and adds, "I do my homework with my friends."

Looking as though he is having a second thought about giving blood is Anthony Davis. With him is Mrs. Atkins, a Red Cross volunteer.

Hangin' out after having donated are Jason Pyles, Jimmy Cambell, Jay Williams, Jill Gillespie, Mian Porter, and Shelly Graves.

Going over some last minute paperwork with a Red Cross volunteer is Kelly Brunson.

Having a few laughs after donating are Melinda Adams and Jennifer Casey.

Donating the Gift of Life

On November 5, 1993, the school had a blood drive. Many students and some teachers went to the girls' gym to give blood. Some students were donating blood for the first time while others were seasoned veterans. That day 72 people came to give blood, while only 59 pints were given to Red Cross. Some people may have been turned away for drinking coffee that morning, or their temperature wasn't just right. When most students were asked, they had positive thoughts about giving blood. But Stacey McKee felt different: "I have given blood several times before but never this much blood at one time. I would think twice before doing it again."

How did you feel about giving blood? "Giving blood always makes me feel good. I hope more people will give in the spring. You never know whether you may need blood yourself." — Mrs. Gilliam, Key

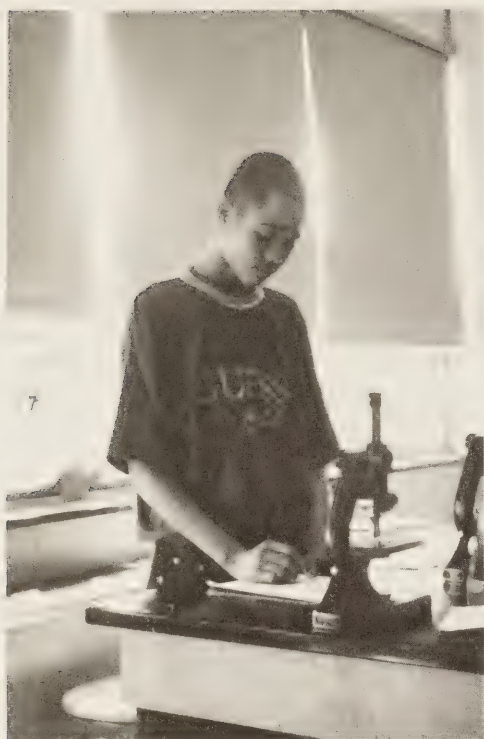

Club sponsor

"I felt very good about giving blood because it can give someone else another chance, and that is important to me." — Jackie Seegraves

"It gives me a wonderful feeling, to give part of myself so that others may live. I do it every chance I get." — Mr. Stroup

"I felt that me giving blood was the least I could do. I felt that if I can give one pint of blood and 20 other people give the same amount it could save many lives. I think that one of these days I may need some blood and would like to be able to live because of that one pint of blood. It may have been very little; it just makes me feel good to give something that would save someone's life." — Erin Long

FASHIONS: Old and New

"GUESS what?" says Aubrey Salley, who is trying to complete his biology lab. "I don't know what I'm doing."

A green light is given to Chauntal Venable and Gabrielle Brown for sporting that classical jean look.

This school year the Fashion Squad have scouted the halls to bring to you the hip new fashions and fads that have gone down the downtrodden path of being played out. Taking a stroll through the halls, you have to take notice that styles of today have gone back to the 60's and 70's with the bell-bottoms, afros, clogs (stacks), and ruffled blouses.

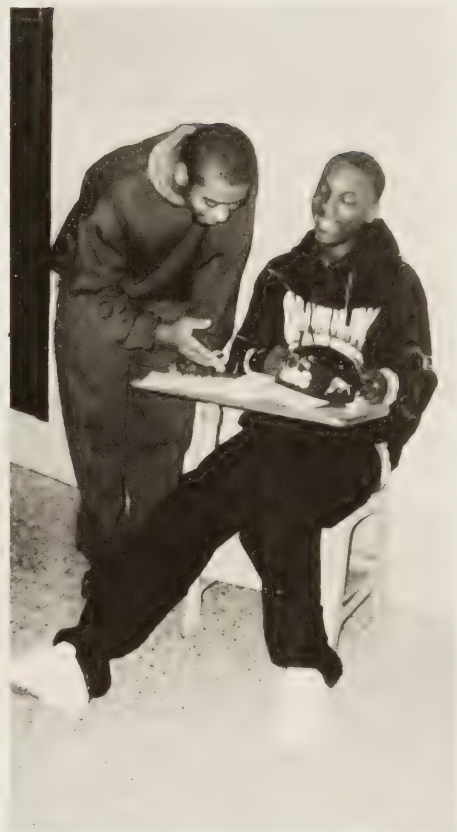

Other fashions students wear, such as Polo by R. L., Nautica, and suede low-top basketball sneakers, have been around for years. However, the classic "b-boy" look with baggy sometimes sagging jeans oversized shirts, and a fly pair of kicks still lingers through the halls today.

Complimenting Misty Frost on her 60's look on spirit day is Gabrielle.

Stopping and staring, looking and glaring, Brian Garmany catches the eyes of Jamil Davis and Kendra Carson.

Lending a helping hand, Tony Collins tries to explain classwork to Antonio Barrow who has other things on his mind.

Showing off her 60's bell-bottoms and stacks, Mrs. Holman tells senior Lavonta Henderson about the homecoming court.

Academics is not all bookwork

Our school is dedicated to meeting the needs and requirements of all students, preparing them for their role in the future of our country.

Knowing that each student is unlike his or her fellow students not only physically but also in temperament, experience, mental capacity, and the like, our academics help students find themselves and carve their niche in the world.

Continuously our faculty members strive to keep abreast of the most recent knowledge and information in their respective fields and to acquire the latest education methods and techniques so that this knowledge may be imparted most effectively to students.

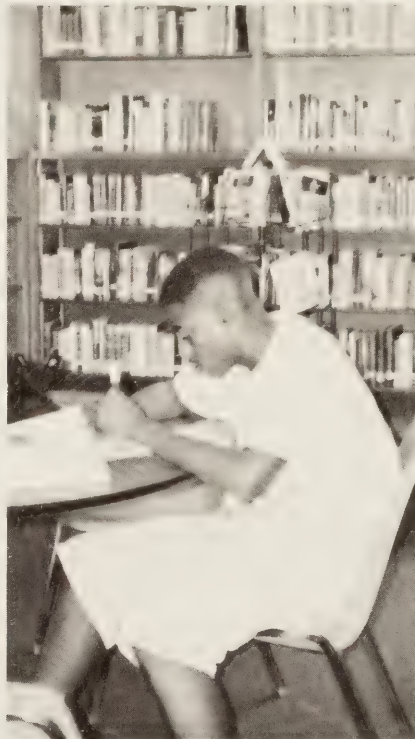

Mrs. Lowe's health class shows this is not just another boring period as they get involved in the lesson on stress.

Trimming things up, Mrs. Barbour, Antonio Davis, and Andrew Slezak cut back cana lillies that were planted in front of our school.

Even learning can be fun as coach Denmark's students demonstrate while they use paper airplanes in a science lab.

Striving hard to keep up with his academics, Antwan Fennel spends time in the library, building his knowledge.

Arts at work

Students at WHS had ample opportunity to express themselves in the arts.

Many elected to take art and belong to the Art Club, sponsored by art instructor Mr. Badie. Throughout the year art students displayed their works on the wall in the art hallway beside the auditorium. Works included self-portraits, pencil drawings, collages, watercolor, and more.

Many outlets were available in music. Many chose to participate in the band. The band performed at pep assemblies, games, and competed in music fests and won several awards. In spring the band took a trip to Hershey, Pennsylvania. Some participated in the marching or concert band; others, the jazz ensemble. One of the exciting events of the year was the band's receiving new uniforms. The director was Mr. McClelland.

Heading the choral program was Mrs. Arnesa Powell, who directed vocal ensemble and the Elite group. The choral groups performed throughout the year at assemblies and special programs. The group had a special concert in February as a salute to Black History Month.

The dance program was headed by Mrs. Valerie Fauntleroy. Her Dance Line performed at assemblies throughout the year in a variety of traditional and modern dance styles.

Discussing a student's artwork during art class are Wayne Elickson, Mr. Badie, instructor, and O.T. Dunlap.

During the Homecoming assembly the chorus, directed by Mrs. Powell, performs the song, "You Make Me Feel Brand New."

Attentively listening to a joke that one of her German students made up, Miss Mitchell laughs in her first period class.

Looking into Mrs. Dupuy's class, Michanda Jones, Tamara Lassiter, Ashley Stokes, Damon Pinnox, Latasha Bolden, Amy Henderson, and Courtney Sauer are trying their best to be attentive.

Listening to Miss Mitchell's directions before they begin their book work are Brian Holub, Barry Surber, Karin Ubeda, Lee Jackson, and Irma Puckett.

Clubbing on the Run

During the year students in foreign language classes will learn a different language that they might have always wanted to know. In fact some, not very many, students will take two years of two languages so it will look better on their resume for college.

Most students in our school join Spanish because a good percentage of our nation has Spanish immigrants and it's an easy language to learn. Then there are other students who like Spanish because they have Spanish Fiestas and it's an easy "A".

French students like French because it sounds like a language where the words just roll off your tongue and one of their older brothers or sisters might have taken

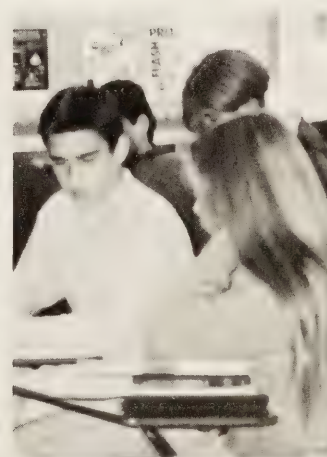

French though and said it was an easy course. Almost every person who has taken French though has said that it was the hardest foreign language ever to be taken.

A few of the German students said the only reason they took German is because their counselors said the Spanish classes were filled and that German and Latin were practically empty. Those students that said this are now happy that they took German because the teacher makes it easy to understand and experience so that German isn't so bad after you get used to it; then it is fun. Besides, German is a wonderful language to take since Germany and Japan are the two top leading countries in the world right now.

Latin classes have almost filled up in the past year since the new freshman class has come to the school. Some of the upperclassmen have said that they really didn't want to learn this language because it is the derivative language for all other languages and it was going to be hard since you would be learning from all languages. In Tennessee this would be a required course for all students in high school.

All and any language would be a good language to learn because behind every language is a reason to learn it. No language is really too hard or too easy; it's all in how you perceive it.

Listening to Mrs. Labell, Wanda Russell and Chris Davidson sit in their seats attentively.

The Latin teacher, Mr. Hardin, explains the board work while Heather Giles, Holly Aleandro, and Jennifer Emmet listen attentively. Continuing to do her work is Jennifer Gabb.

Money and Numbers

Math and business "For being in there a second year it is easier, but there's not really anything interesting except the gossip," said Beth Baumgardner. In Ms. Pendergraft fourth period Basic Algebra class, Kevin Stickles admitted, "I heard that geometry was hard, but I think that it is more work than it is hard." During Mrs. Gilland's second period class everyone was busily working, as usual.

Taking geometry notes, Dwayne Gray looks on to copy all of the important examples.

While in Ms. Pepe's fifth period Amber VonDonk looks over Geometry notes.

Finishing up his typing test is Woody Slate.

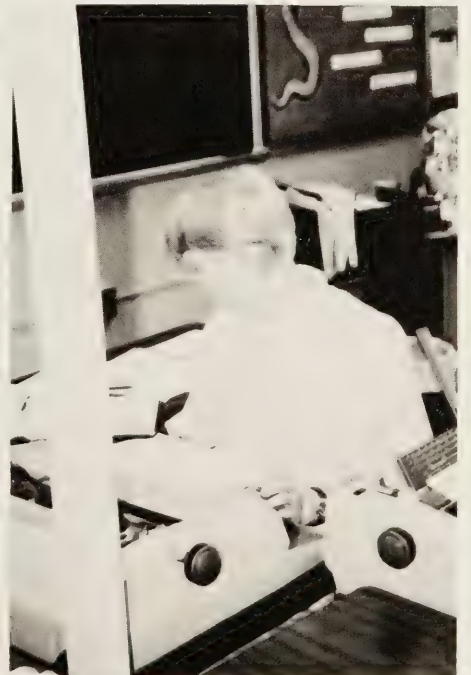

Looking on to copy all the homework, Sylvia Willis finishes all her classwork.

In typing class Stanley Bland hurriedly finished his typing assignment.

Hurrying to complete the typing, Charles Johnson types his last sentence.

Laneka Byrd works hard on her science project.

The World of Science

Students and Faculty had all kinds of fun in their attempts to make the educational process exciting. Special efforts were made to recognize the achievements of academically focused students. Some students applied themselves and became legends in their own time. Others came and went from day to day simply to receive their diplomas and get on with life. Each left his or her mark in one way or another, and each helped to shape our lives.

People were, as always, the most important aspect of the school. They reflected the world they live in by being eager to learn about other cultures.

Science is a very interesting subject to learn. It takes you on trips you have never been before and includes a lot of different experiments. Science projects are also fun to do because of the fun things you get to do.

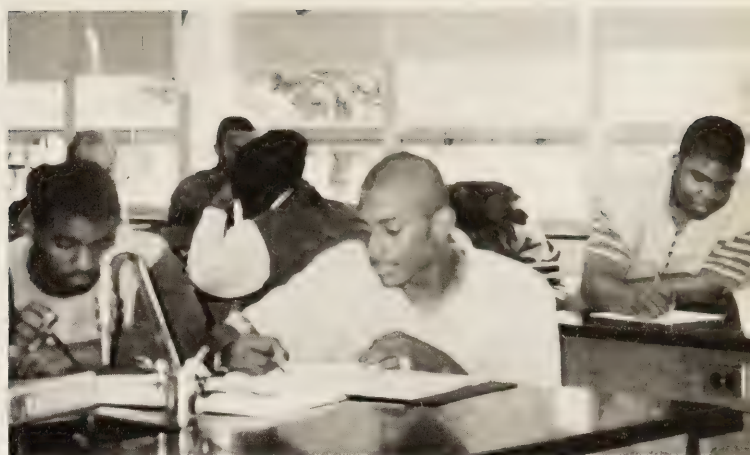

Anthony Parker jokes around in class before the tardy bell rings.

On another Monday morning Mrs. Paige checks attendance before reviewing for a big test.

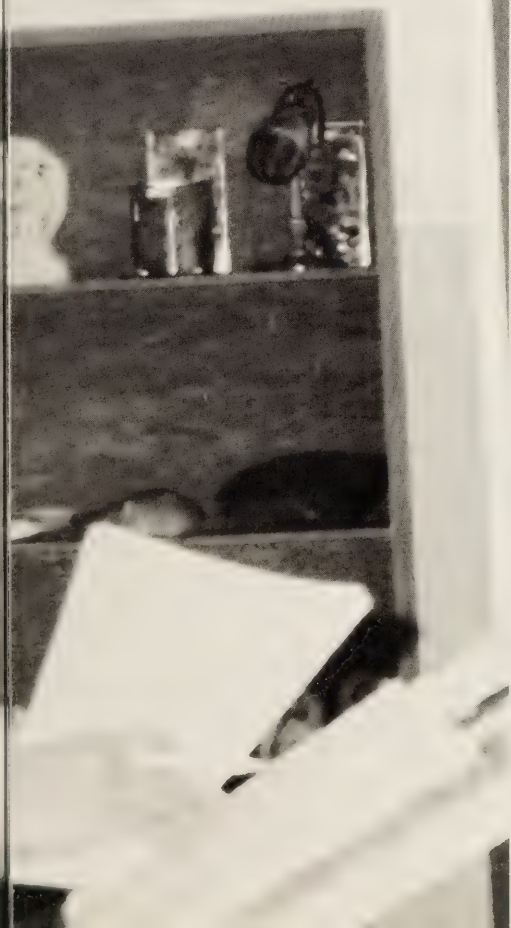

Domonique Rainey and Terrance Jerigan take their time study for a quiz.

Commander Wheeler just finished lecturing his class about how the military would be later in life.

Mr. Hodge's class takes time out to pose for the camera.

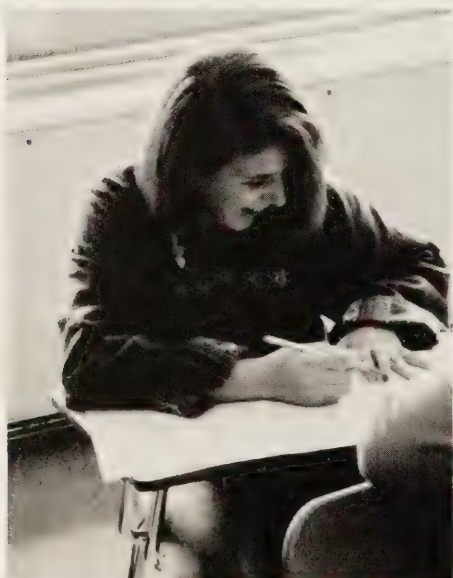

History and News

Concerning social studies and journalism, "It's fun making something that the school will have forever," said Diane Draper. In Mr. Stroup's fifth period is the yearbook staff working on the yearbook. Laura Camacho said, "It's fun cropping photos for the yearbook." "Social Studies is good since you need to know where places are and learn about history," Brian Morgan said.

Looking at clip art for the yearbook, Cynthia Carmack looks at the many choices.

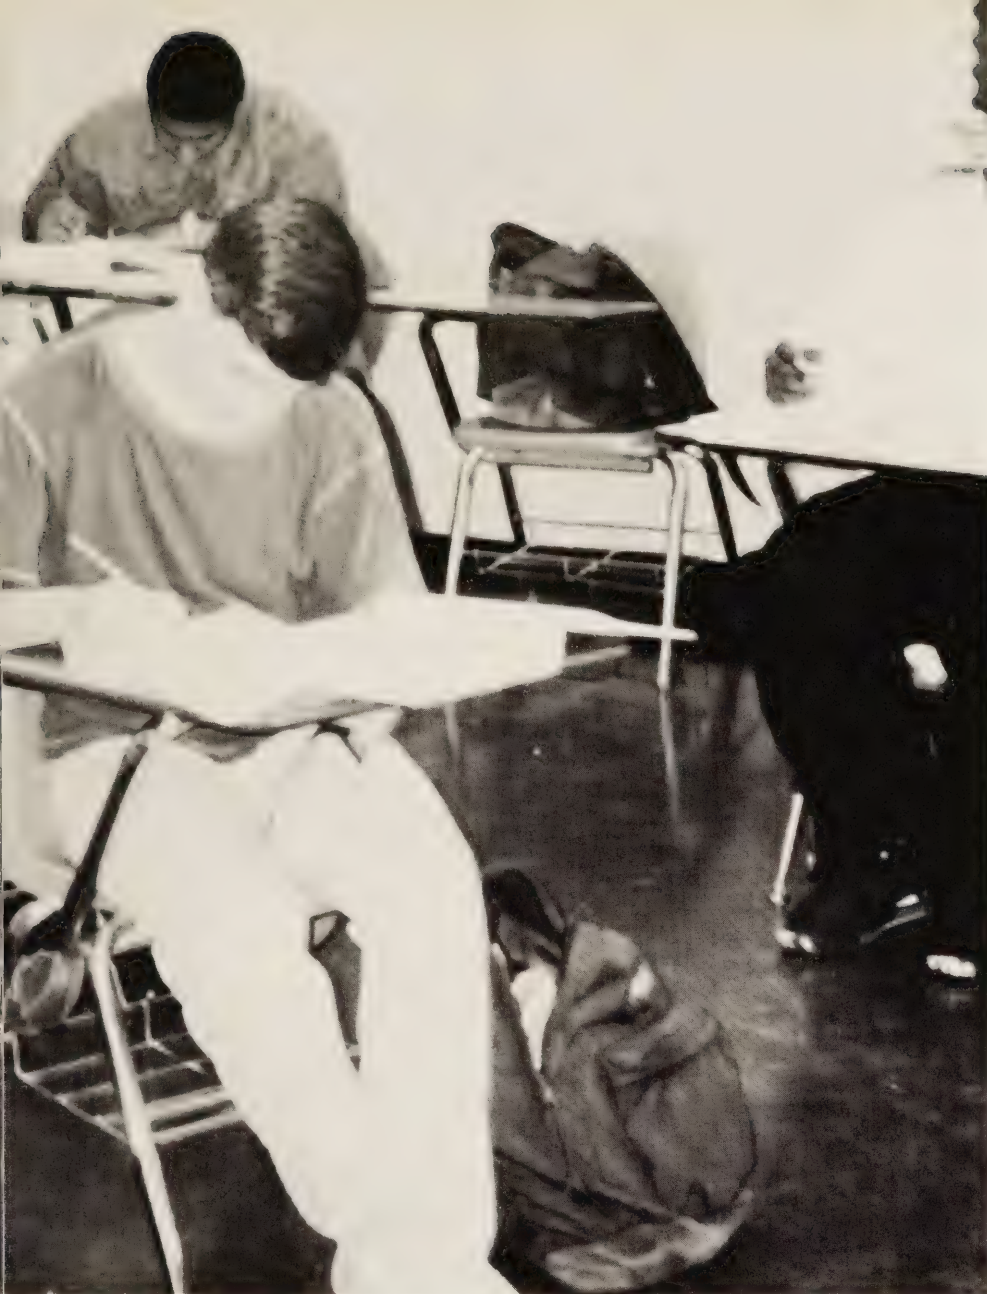

In fifth period yearbook class Jennifer Waits draws a layout.

While writing copy for the yearbook, Shaneekwa Perkins goes over copy with Olivia Neiser.

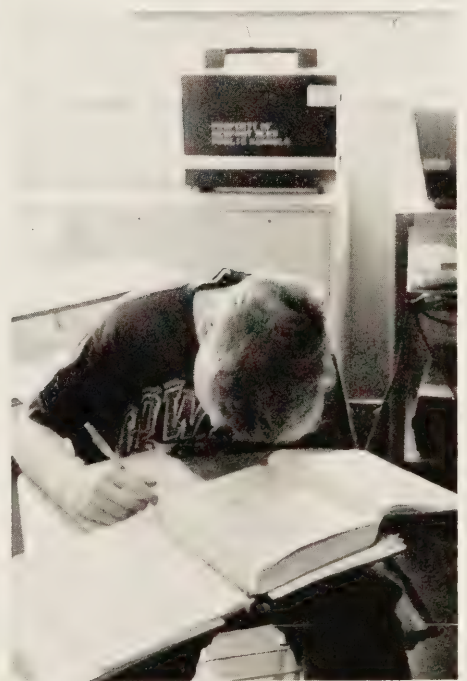

Finishing up his last question, Jason Kelly gets his work in on time.

In fifth period World History class Kevin Largena goes over notes for his test.

Cropping photos for the yearbook, Megan Dandois and Mian Porter get their work finished early.

"Are your problems correct, James Walker?"

Working on the computer in 5th period is Jason Garber.

Learning and Food

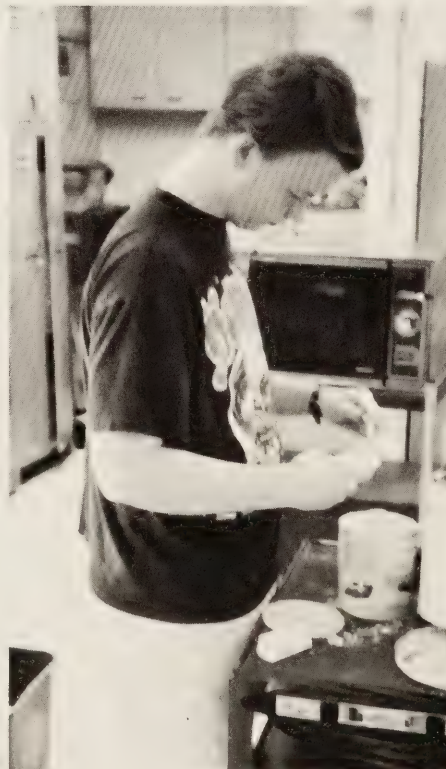

The Special Ed and Home Ec class went on a field trip to Pizza Hut. The time was spent learning to make pizzas and preparing the food. "The time was fun, learning to cook pizza, but the best time was eating the pizza they made," said a junior. "I enjoyed the cooking a lot," Diane Draper, a junior, said. "This class really helped me improve on my skills. I didn't like sewing. It wasn't for me. Overall it's a good class for everyone to take," Draper added. "The cooking part is fun because when I get on my own I'll need to know how to cook," said Brian Morgan, a sophomore.

Peeling apples in Mrs. Twiford's 3rd period class is Nicole Privette.

"Are you sure that is one cup?" Brian Morgan levels the flour in his 3rd period cooking class.

Looking over instructions to make apple pie is Aisha Stith.

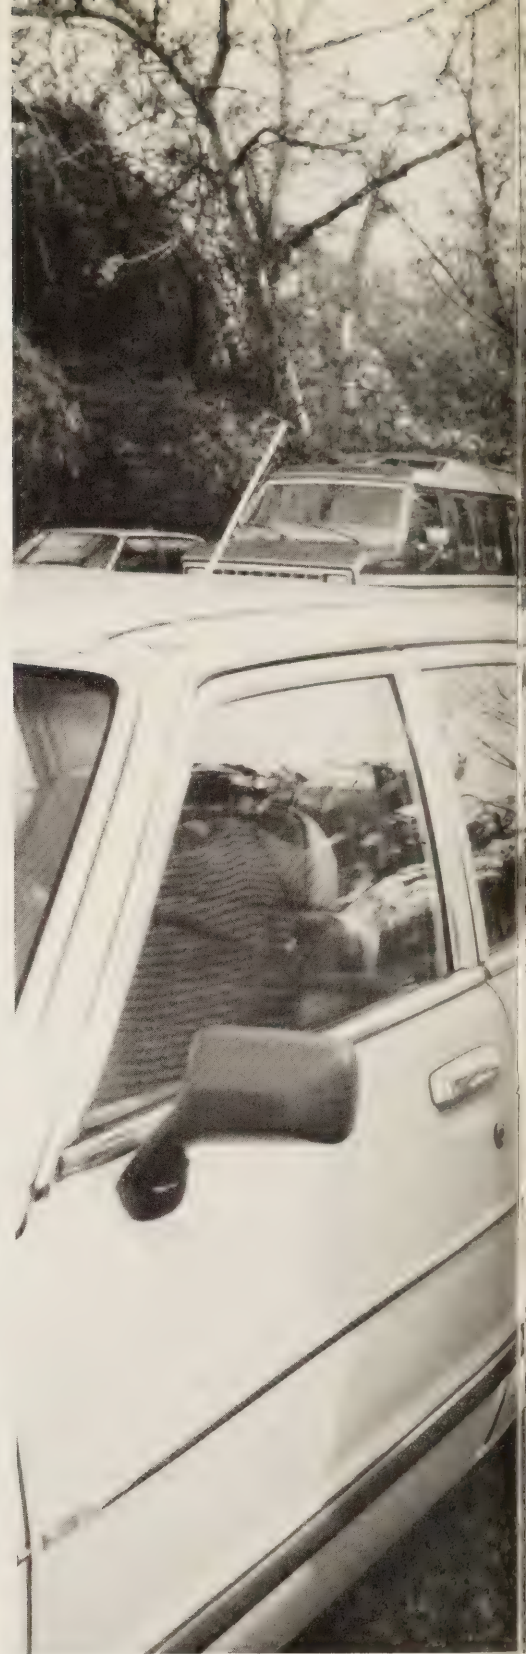

People people people!

Our school was made up of a variety of people. Each person had his or her own individual style and attitude. Everyone contributed to the school in his/her own way. Some people became involved with sports and clubs. Others made their contributions academically. Many students just came and went from day to day. Teachers had a major impact on a student's life. Whether or not a teacher and student got along affected the student's attitude and grades. With all the diversity among people, there were a lot of conflicts. Some were resolved peacefully while others erupted violently. Most people got along well and made many new friends. There was also a change in management. Mr. Evans, our new principal, had a major impact on the school. He made a lot of changes and enforced many school rules. The assortment of personalities added to the atmosphere of the school. The people were the most important part of our school.

Grasping the attention of her student, Kenyatta Walker, Coach Patterson explains the geographical features of the United States.

Rushing to go home, junior Tina Bradley searches for her keys.

Stopping between classes, senior Sue Chapman takes time to talk to her friend, junior Clifton Stokes.

Rounding the bases

Third base was a familiar spot for lead-off hitter, Scott Williams. Being in the baseball program for five years led him to be the captain of the J.V. and varsity teams. Scott learned to play at Parkview and Deer Park Little League where his 14-15-year-old team went to the state tournament. He credited the development of his talent to his father and Coaches Peters and Wright. Although Scott missed five games his junior year due to an ankle injury, he batted .390 and won honorable mention honors as a utility player. Coach Wright was expecting Scott to be one of the leading hitters in the district. Scott hoped his hard work would pay off and allow him to extend his career by playing at Hampden-Sydney College.

Perfect Match

Her junior year, the number three seed on the girls' tennis team had the commendable record of five wins and four losses. Dana Halsey, the captain of the varsity team, first picked up a racket in the ninth grade when she joined. She received encouragement from her boyfriend, coach, and teammates to advance to the number three spot. While improving in her sport, Dana excelled in her academics. She held the rank of seven in the senior class while taking accelerated and advanced placement courses. The balance between her academics and athletics proved her to be an ideal student. Dana planned to continue playing tennis at Mary Washington College while majoring in Biology.

Reflecting on the past

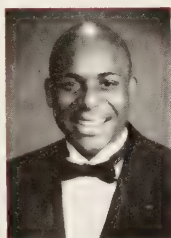

The senior class gathered at the Holiday Inn in Hampton on January 27 for the traditional senior banquet. The class enjoyed treats provided by the hotel which made up three courses in a buffet style. Large tables allowed several classmates to eat together and socialize.

Superlatives were awarded to class leaders and to those popular in the class. Two new superlatives were added to the list this year: Most Helpful and Friendliest. These were added to include more seniors. In their English classes, the seniors voted for their favorites.

After the presentation of awards, senior class sponsor Mrs I. Lee opened the microphone to anyone wishing to speak. Melinda Adams was first to take advantage of the offer. She congratulated the class for making it only a semester away from graduation, and gave everyone her best wishes for the future.

Several girls sang their versions of Mariah Carey's song "Hero," which was voted the class song. Chris Cooke did an impression of Martin Lawrence. The seniors seemed to enjoy dining as a class.

Class of '95

While being introduced, junior Joe Liversedge and his date Autumn Mears walk through the illuminated ring.

"Let's bust a move," says junior Greg Seay to sophomore Misty Frost as he hears a new song playing.

Early in the dance juniors Delbert Scheitler and Kelly Roberts laugh as their friends start dancing.

Cheers! Clifton Stokes, April Holloway,
Laylanny Acy, Ebony Heckstall, Latasha
Brown, Darrel "Speedy" Brown, Crystal
Barnes, Terrance Jernigan, Greg Seay,
George Hicks, Gabrielle Brown, Chris
Cooke, Aaron Swan, and Misty Frost.

"Midnight Illusion"

A moment to remember?

The junior Ring Dance was a "once in a lifetime experience that was very memorable, and I hope I never forget it," junior "Rambo" Saxton said. It was special for junior Chakakon Cobb because "it was my first dance, and, you know, I was 'fly.' "

The cafeteria sparkled and moved from the music. "The decorations were wonderful because I helped with them," junior Mian Porter said.

The dance ended with quick silence as junior Eneke Grant observed: "It was enjoyable at times, but it was funny when the electricity went out!"

The dance of February 5, 1994, will never be forgotten in the hearts and minds of many students.

Taking a break from dancing, junior Pauletta Armstrong and her escort talk about where to go after the dance.

STEPPING UP

Stepping up into the tenth grade, students saw many new administrative faces.

As freshmen, their first year in high school was hard enough. Now their sophomore year was just as hard, with new rules, dress codes, and people. Alex McKeithan and Christie Simon felt the tenth grade had really improved since last year. They felt more comfortable and relaxed with new discipline, and the atmosphere was really suited for learning. Jason George and Shannon Jones had the same attitude about school discipline; they didn't like the tenth grade and thought the teachers could teach better. Brook Stokes was stuck in between; she really didn't like the tenth grade but thought that that was better than the ninth grade.

If you roamed the halls at Warwick, you saw many tenth graders active in clubs, sports, and other activities. Many students' opinions of their freshman year were they were not sure what to expect, whom they would meet, or what challenges they would face. Stepping up to the tenth grade was not as hard as they had expected.

Facing the changes

"It's certainly a change from middle school. It's more independent; you just report to one class after the next without being led by another teacher — a welcome change. I'm looking forward to the coming years." Dorian Zoumplis commented during Mrs. Gilland's 6th period geometry class.

The first week of school many freshmen seemed lost, trying to find their classrooms, and learning to open the lockers in the five minutes between each class. Some were also suprised to find sophomores, juniors, and seniors all in the same classes with them. The freshmen year of high school could be considered the most difficult year.

Clubs, clubs, and more clubs

An overwhelming number of students participated in clubs. Yearbook, N.J.R.O.T.C., Drama, and Newspaper are just a few of the clubs that met on a daily basis. Many students participated in group candy sales to help raise money for their club. There was a variety of clubs to choose from. For those in the "theatrical state of mind," there were Drama and Sight and Sound. Many students interested in rhythm and sound participated in Band Corps, Flag Corps, or the Dance Line. For the athletically inclined there were sports such as Football, Basketball, Wrestling, and Softball, just to name a few. Many students took advantage of their bilingual skills by joining the Spanish or French Club. Our enthusiastic cheerleaders kept our school spirit alive all through the year. All in all, there was a club for everyone. Club choices were an endless possibility. For many students it was a matter of deciding just how many clubs they could fit into their schedule.

Governing The School

The Student Council Association and the Executive Boards were responsible for raising money for the student body's extracurricular activities such as selling candy to spend on dances.

Each Executive Board, one for each class, raised money for its class's ring dance and prom.

The S.C.A. organized the money and arranged the dances for all classes throughout the year.

Mrs. Williams, the S.C.A. sponsor, was a 1974 Warwick graduate and enthusiastic about being a Raider once again and working with high school students because she felt that when given step-by-step directions they could be responsible. Mrs. Williams also believed that the more students were involved, the more successful they would be.

"It's an honor to represent my student body, one way by being an athlete and participating in extracurricular activities and another by representing my school as S.C.A. president," said Dexter Richardson.

"Because I was the vice-president of the tenth grade class, a lot of students came to me telling me they want changes and their ideas and concerns. I felt that I could do more for the students in the S.C.A. than in a class office. I felt that I could represent their point of view better as the S.C.A. vice-president," said Ebony Heckstall.

"Representing the student body of Warwick High School is important to me because I want to help make the school great. Getting involved in activities can make your four years in high school even more enjoyable," said Carin Hardman, the secretary.

"I wanted to make my senior year the best," said Jennifer Bailey.

"I was the only one willing to fill the difficult job of reporter when Bonnie Boren moved," said Amanda North.

Simply the best

Honor Societies are true to their name. They truly are an honor. Unlike other clubs, Honor Societies recognize students because they have excelled in a certain area. There are many different kinds such as the French, Spanish, National Honor Society, and Math. Some students have a unique talent and ability in one area of study. Most of them are rewarded by one Honor Society accepting them.

Honor Societies tend to "build up" the students who are in them and can cause students to strive to do better. Some students enter high school with the dream of being in an honor society. That dream helps them work harder to get into one.

Expanding your horizons

Joining a club may play an important part in your high school years. Clubs can give you a better insight on life, introduce you to new people and adventures. "I'm in the computer club for the experience with the computers and for the leadership," said Gerry Close, president.

Being in a club gives you a chance to meet people and gain new experiences that may be able to help you in life. The art club president, Andy Linton, and vice president, Sunny Wood, agree that art is an expression of yourself. It shows your feelings, fears, angers, and joys. The art club gives you an opportunity to show your creativity to your peers and to yourself. The art club also teaches you skills, values, and gives you the potential that can expand your horizons.

Clubs do not only keep your mind in shape but also your body. "I enjoy dancing and love performing," said Brooke Schubert, a sophomore member of the dance line. Clubs are not just for one year but for many years. "I enjoy dancing and have been dancing for two years," said Burnitta Johnson, a senior.

The performing artists

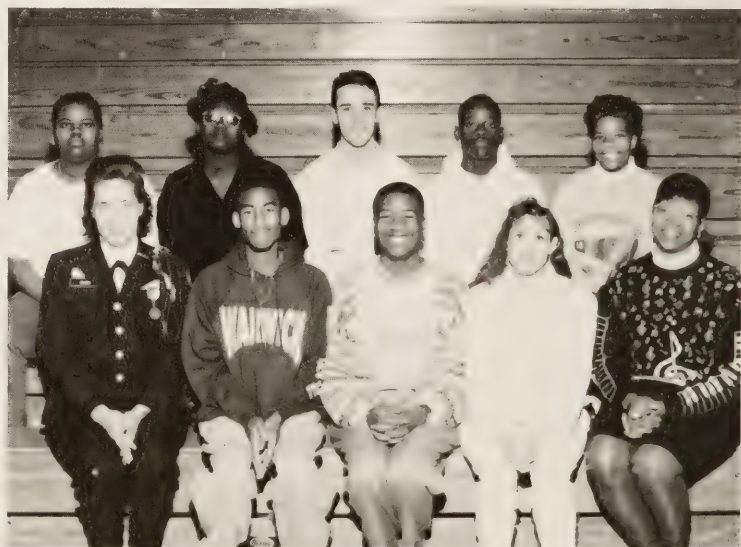

Three of the most creative institutes are the Drama Club, Sight and Sound, and Chorus. The Drama Club worked on a production entitled, "You Can't Take It With You." Unfortunately, the production was first postponed and later cancelled. The group later planned an anti-drug play, "Juvie," for production in the spring.

The Chorus presented a wide range of voices and performed at most of the assemblies. But behind all the commotion of performances was the Sight and Sound group. They worked the lights, curtains, and helped out on most technical aspects of the plays and assemblies.

Singing a song of love, the Chorus performs at the Homecoming Assembly.

Clubbing it!

There are lots of clubs available for students to take. Some of the clubs available are Yearbook Staff, Quill and Scroll, Computer Club, and the Literary Magazine Staff. The Yearbook Staff saw the production of this yearbook. They had set deadlines, and each member got to pick which layout he/she wanted to do. Pictures were taken, and layouts were completed. Each layout was approved by the editors and the yearbook advisor and then sent to Herff Jones, the publisher. The Literary Magazine Staff worked on our Literary Magazine, "Thoughts Of Gold." Poems, stories, and artwork were submitted to either members of the staff or directly to the magazine advisor, Mrs. Clark. They decided which ones would go in the magazine; then the magazine was printed and distributed.

Quill and Scroll is "A kind of honor society for journalism students," as quoted by Natascha Thompson. Quill and Scroll is not a club of normal standards. You pay lifetime dues of around $10.50 and you get a certificate and membership card stating that you are a member. Quill and Scroll has been around since the 1920's and has been offered at Warwick since 1947. To get in the club you must be a second semester sophomore or higher and excel in journalism. You also need a journalism teacher's recommendation.

The Computer Club sets up fund raisers like selling candy or organizing car washes. Sometimes the club goes to computer meets. "There are two kinds of after school meetings, business, where we talk about fund raisers or going to the computer meet, and relaxed, where we just talk about the club itself," said Heather Thornton.

The Newspaper Staff meets during 4th period. The staff compiles articles, advice, questions, and other topics together and then has it checked by an editor. Then they send it all to the publisher. Each reporter may have as many as two to three articles to do.

Sometimes it's fun to take a break from the classroom and even clubs as Diane Draper discovered as she spoke with Mike Day and Jamie Ayers during a fall fire drill.

Busy but caring

WHS students found themselves busy both in and out of the classroom. The daily normal assignments in the classroom kept their minds pursuing knowledge in a well-disciplined manner. To the enjoyment of all, students also discovered that high school life included many various types of extra activities.

Numerous clubs and organizations opened their doors, encouraging student participation. After school activities promoted the social graces and fun that should be a part of the maturing process. Life at WHS was hectic; however, this was a hectic that built strong minds in well-rounded individuals.

What has the rapt attention of Madame LaBell, Ellen Davis, and the rest of the French Class? Je ne sais quoi!

Speaking in tongues!

Students at WHS had a variety of foreign languages offered for study: French, Spanish, German, and Latin. Complementing class study were the language clubs that met after school.

Here students relaxed in an informal setting as they planned activities. For years the Spanish Club sponsored a Christmas fiesta in December. Authentic Spanish foods were prepared, and students broke open a piñata. During the final days before the winter holidays, Spanish students sang Christmas carols in Spanish as they walked up and down the halls.

Rumor had it that the Latin Club was planning a toga party to help celebrate its Roman culture.

The German Club went out to dine in a German restaurant to eat real German food and learn more about the culture. Do you know what was sung for the first time on December 25, 1818? "Stille Nacht, Heilige Nacht" (Silent Night, Holy Night), composed by Franz Gruber, a schoolmaster, the day before, sung for the first time in the village church of Oberndorff, Austria.

What do the Latin words "adestre fideles" mean? (O Come All Ye Faithful).

Studying a foreign language can teach you how to say "Merry Christmas" to someone of a different language and culture: "Felix Navidad" (Spanish); "Joyeux Noël" (French); "Buon Natale" (Italian); "Froehliche Weihnachten" (German); and "Mele Kalikimaka" (Hawaiian).

What does samt sirhcyr rem mean? Nothing! It's "Merry Christmas" spelled backwards!

"Don't they serve pizza here?" Looking over the menu before ordering at the German Club's Night Out is Brian Holub.

Learning and speaking

Clubs are an interesting way of learning about public speaking and the world around us. These academic clubs are not only educational; they are also fun. This year Model U.N. attended a conference at Gar-Field High School in northern Virginia. "Having only been to one U.N. simulation before, Gar-Field was a learning experience in how the security council functions," said Megan Dandois, who served as a delegate from United Arab Republic. Last year the Academic team had a successful season with their team. Clubs are a way of meeting others. You can meet people from different schools and different parts of the state while learning something new.

Marching to the beat of a different drum line.

Wind and rain couldn't stop our band from competing. They endured grueling practices, marched like crazy, and performed in every type of weather; but through it all, they still played on.

Under the direction of Mr. Edward McClellan, the band competed, held a winter concert, and went on their annual spring trip. This year they went to Hershey Park, Pennsylvania. The Flag Corps, after practicing all winter, performed for a rating by judges. Both the band and the Flag Corps picked up many new members this year but despite their inexperience did a smashing job.

Making the Team

A lot of hard work and dedication went into our sports program. Students practiced hard every day after school, and some teams, such as basketball, even worked out on Saturdays. Fall sports such as field hockey, football, and track started in the summer. Cheerleading went on all year round.

Sports were an important part of the school year. Being part of a team gave students school spirit and loyalty. It also taught them sportsmanship, group cooperation, and self-esteem. In addition, sports gave students an opportunity to meet people and make lasting friendships. Playing and practicing every day gave students endurance and a sense of team spirit. Sports also provided other students a chance to build their school spirit. Students supported their teams by being managers and attending games. Although many teams did not excel during their seasons, they were nonetheless appreciated for their efforts by their fans, and not for just one moment.

During a varsity field hockey game, Chikia Sprattley runs hard to keep the ball away from her Ferguson opponent.

Cheering with pride

"Trust is possibly the most important thing in our squad," Brittany Barker, three-year veteran, said. The JV and varsity squads developed trust for one another from the first day of tryout practices. "Exercises involving falling backwards and nearly hitting the floor or being pushed off four-foot high mats and praying there will be someone to catch you are the most memorable," Mian Porter said. The exercises are necessary for "flyers" (those who stand on another's shoulders, legs, or hands) to feel what it would be like if a stunt happened to fail. The flyers quickly learn that no matter how they are caught, the bases and spotters will not allow them to hit the ground.

The girls of the varsity squad competed against other squads in the district on Saturday, February 26. They worked longer than their usual six hours of practice a week to prepare for the tournament at Hampton High School. They practiced in order to perfect their three-minute program that included several pyramids and a dance routine. The squad finished seventh in the District.

"Pride in your school is essential for cheering," Jennifer Emmett said, who was active in other sports besides cheerleading. Most JV and varsity cheerleaders had interests in sports, clubs, and activities outside of cheering.

"Cheering demands so much," Megan Dandois said, who played two other sports and was in several clubs. "Sometimes it's hard to give a sufficient amount of time to my other sports, clubs, and studies," she added.

One way or another, the girls supported the school and made up a lot of the small portion of the student body who participated in activities outside of the classroom.

The most common varsity flyer, Summer Strickland, is tossed by her teammates to impress the crowd at the Homecoming game.

Crossing the line

"This has been the best season in three years," said David Lilley, coach of the boys' cross country team. The boys' team advanced from 0-5 to 4-2 under his leadership of seven years.

Bryan Tunstall, recipient of the MVP award, said, "We have a chance of being undefeated next year because of all the returning runners." Tunstall improved his time at the CNU Invitational by 30 seconds.

Josh Starkey and Daniel Griffin agreed that practices were rough but were necessary in order to be successful in the meets. Griffin said, "It was difficult to get motivated (during practice) . . . but not at the meets."

The girls' team had a building season due to the small number of runners. The season record was 2-4, an improvement from their previous season. Coach Roland Ross chose two runners to be named MVP; Carin Hardman and Rae Springer. "I expect next season will be a lot better, but we could use some more runners," said Springer. Springer saw her times improve with each meet. Carin Hardman ran her personal best on the home course where she decreased her time 42 seconds. "I was glad both Rae and I were chosen MVP; we both worked really hard to deserve it," said Hardman.

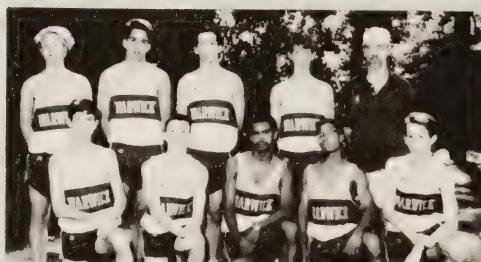

Knowing the pain that can be caused by a pulled muscle, Scott Reaves stretches before a meet at the Noland Trail.

Sticking with it

A list of new rules and regulations caused the JV and varsity field hockey teams to relearn the sport in order not to be penalized. The girls attended practice in the hot August sun and the cold October breeze to strengthen their teams' abilities. Practice started with a one-and-a-half mile run; then the girls paired up to work their arms with passing exercises. Frequently, a spectator could see the JV and varsity teams competing in a scrimmage to prepare for actual games.

The varsity squad encountered several roadblocks during their season. Injuries incurred during practice and in games caused starters to recover on the bench, giving opportunities for three "relief" girls, Karen Morgan, Sunny Wood, and Megan Dandois, who were required to be skilled in almost every position in order to fill the need for alternating players to give starters a rest.

Backed by Megan Dandois at right wing, Karen Morgan rushes to receive a pass by Heather Edelblute.

While running, the teams were also subjected to harassment from passing motorists.

The JV and varsity teams were able to overcome these obstacles and focus on their sport. The varsity team improved their passing and teamwork, agreed captains Heather Edelblute and Catherine Winfrey. They always felt backed up, they added.

The Daily Press commended La-Shonda Everett for her outstanding performance. "I worked very hard to receive the award," Everett said. "The season was fun and exciting," she added.

The JV team included many new players, most of whom had never picked up a hockey stick. Why try out for the team? "Hockey keeps you in shape and teaches teamwork," Alexis Micholas said. "I think we will win more next year," she added, a feeling shared by all the players.

Blocking a free shot from getting near the goal, Jennifer Casey keeps her stick on the ground.

After the JV scores a point, defensive players Stephanie Stallings and Marika Lewis hit a high five.

Working together, Stacey Spruill and Karen Morgan protect both sides of the field in case Heather Edelblute loses control of the ball.

About to regain possession, link Catherine Winfrey carefully moves around the ball so as not to be penalized for an obstruction.

Just add water

"The swim team has done a great job," Mary Gilliam, assistant coach, explained at the Denbigh meet. "We are still a young team and are constantly receiving new swimmers. Being a former swimmer, I know the hard work and dedication it takes to make a great team. This is my first time as the assistant coach. I feel we have come a long way, especially with our new swimmers. We have an extremely strong women's team that has won the majority of their meets. Though we do not have many men, they make up for the small number by working well together to pull off exceptional relays. Coach Zoby is wonderful in meeting the needs of all our swimmers on the various levels of which they perform," Gilliam added.

The girls' team as well as the guys' are doing very well, Stacey Spruill said during swim practice between her sets.

"This is my second year on the team, and I have really enjoyed it," Donna Murray, a sophomore, said after she had finished fourth in the 500 free event. "Our coach, Ken Zoby, really puts forth a lot of time and energy to make the team the best it can be. Having such a large girls' team, he tries to swim everyone in at least one event. He does not let anyone feel unwanted on the team. He has made me feel very welcome even though I am not one of the greatest swimmers," Murray added.

At the meet against Kecoughtan, Robert Wiggelsworth swims the 100 fly.

After swimming the 50 free at the meet against Menchville, Matt Arnold walks to the bench to rest for his next event.

"Move! Kick harder!" Coach Zoby urges his team to give that extra effort. Sydney Hutson lends moral support. The result was a victory against Kecoughtan.

Passing off to JV player Jason Johnson is Aaron Glore. Johnson took the pass and made a layup for two points.

Looking for an open teammate before time runs out on the shot clock is JV player Corey Barnes.

In pain, struggling to recover from his fall is JV player Jason Johnson.

After being fouled, varsity player Steve Moore goes to the line and makes two free throws.

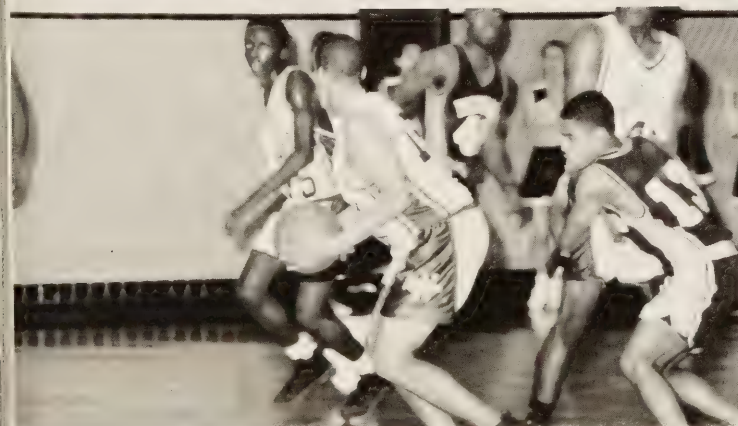

Above the rim (Doggy dog defense)

After the disappointing season the year before, head coach Ben Moore didn't feel the season would again turn out to be a struggle. However, the players did improve as the season progressed.

One of the highlights was the team's win against Denbigh, one of the district's top teams. The team also scored fine line wins against Lafayette and Menchville.

Junior Tyrone Perry led the team in scoring and was also one of the leading scorers in the district. Other standouts included Andre Robinson, Jamil Davis, Linwood Moore, and Dominique Rainey.

With much talent expected to return, the following season's prospects looked good.

Recognizing that his teammate Linwood Moore is open, varsity player Andre Robinson attempts to pass the ball to him.

Watching to make sure Dwayne Gray gets the rebound, varsity player Dominique Rainey boxes out.

Battling for air supremacy

Girls' basketball matured to a high level of performance. Using a highly sophisticated half-court game and an array of aggressive defenses, girls' varsity and junior varsity were able to corral some impressive victories.

"The league is pretty well even this year, and anybody can win on a given night," coach Melissa Patterson said. "The girls don't see a difference between them and the guys at all," she added.

"We get the ball down the court but take our time," Tinisha Randall said, who played forward and guard.

"Dishing out passes while driving to the hole is my strength," said Tiffany Palmer, who played point guard.

"My weakness is dribbling with my left hand," Sharonda Harrison said, who played power forward. "My strength is going to the board," she added.

My hardest challenge is getting the girls to realize they're just as good as those who are ranked above us, coach Pete said.

Preparing to steal the ball from a Ferguson opponent is freshman Sharonda Harrison.

Trapping one of Ferguson's players are freshmen Sharonda Richardson and Tanesha Thomas.

Driving up the court for an easy layup is JV player Jerry Baker.

Going up for the easy jumper that counts for two points is sophomore Sharonda Harrison of the varsity team. Preparing to make the winning foul shot against Ferguson is freshman Sharonda Richardson.

Competitors at their best

Producing one of its most productive seasons in recent years, the wrestling team challenged not only their opponents but also themselves. Coach Lewis credited the team's success to a positive, hard-working, dedicated attitude along with the leadership of five outstanding seniors: Jimmy Alston, Lamont Huffaker, Jamie Minnigan, Ed Garay, and Andre Slaughter, all ranked in the top of their respective weight classes including Alston, who was District champion (undefeated), Regional runner-up, and 4th in State. The rest of the team was filled by some determined and enthusiastic athletes. Coach Davis felt next year's returning wrestlers would carry on this winning tradition.

Gymnastics is a sport requiring much time and effort in order to be competitive and win. The gymnasts showed great anticipation and did their best, coming in first at all competitions except against Menchville, who defeated them by a single point. "Districts belong to us this year!" Karen Ubeda said. "Our varsity team has improved a lot, and next year we will be even better," she added.

The team enjoyed training with Ferguson because it gave them an opportunity to see how at least one other school prepares for matches.

"I think competing in gymnastics is fun," said Jennifer Lyons, "and I love to get to know new people from other schools."

Working hard for a pin is wrestler Jamie Minnigan.

Scoring another takedown is wrestler Andre Slaughter.

JV Wrestling Team: Front: Matt Callis, Ricky Black, Calvin Day, Gary Cooper, William Boone. Back: William Prescott, Michael Steward, Quan Peacock, Chris Davidson, Jamaal Rose, Coach Lewis

Maintaining perfect form on the uneven bars is first-year gymnast Jennifer Lyons.

Vaults like this from Summer Strickland in her meet against Denhigh vaulted the gymnastics team to its best season ever.

Determined to pin his opponent is wrestler Lenny Price.

Performing a difficult maneuver, gymnast Karen Ubeda uses all concentration to stay on the balance beam.

Gymnastics Team: Front: Christina Singhaseni, Jessica Jones, Timeka Tailer, Karen Ubeda, Lee Schindel. Middle: Nicole Bolden, Sherri Womble, Yami Stokes, Diane Draper, Tina Berry, Shelly Warrwick. Making tracks

The girls' and boys' track teams established themselves as an important part of the school's extracurricular activities. Staying after school for strenuous practices gave the teams the endurance they needed to accomplish their goals. Dedication was demanded: if you didn't attend tryouts and practices, you were automatically cut from the team.

Three seniors lead the team with outstanding leadership: Tracy Lewis, Dexter Richardson, and Ronald Barham.

The 800 meter relay team consisted of these three plus junior standout Darrell "Speedy" Brown, who also ran on the 1600 meter relay along with Marc Lattimore, Bryan Tunstall, and T.J. Jones.

Tracy Lewis was one of the district's leading contenders in the triple jump.

The track team's future appeared bright because of such outstanding freshmen as Tornell Jones, Marc Lattimore, William Clark, and others.

The team was short on girls; few answered the challenge to give their dedication and devotion to track. Why?

Stretching and obviously not straining as he prepares for the 500 is Marvin Taliaferro.

Reading off events and times before a track meet as team members listen on is Coach Juan Jackson.

Clubs, tees, and tennis!

Golf was a sport that did not get much recognition compared to the other sports at WHS. "No one seems to take the golf team very seriously," golf team member John Gibbs said. "We would get some appreciation if everyone knew a little about it," he added.

"We get out of school. We get the best windbreakers and shirts, plus we got the skills to pay the bills," golfer John Greenway said.

"We would do good if we had support and the cheerleaders come out and cheer us on," Jacob Edelblute said.

"We hit 'em long and straight. They just didn't go in!" Commander Wheeler, golf coach, said.

The girls' tennis team was led by Kara Streker, Brook Reid, and Dana Halsey. Several players said that Ferguson was the hardest team to beat.

The tennis team was stronger in singles matches, weaker in doubles.

"This tennis team is the best Warwick has had," Dana Halsey said.

The team was coached by Conrad Kee-secker.

With that look of certainty, Brook Reid returns a volleyed ball.

Golf Team: Barry Surber, Matt Hauser, John Greenway, Jon Gibbs, Jacob Edelblute

Tennis Team: Front: Brook Reid, Dana Halsey, Veronica Norwinsky, Jennifer Gabb. Back: Vanessa Starkey, Kara Streker, Caroline Kenney, Wendy Bonello, Rebecca Winfrey

Going low, Kara Streker scoops the ball back across the net.

In that perfect crouching form, Barry Surber puts his right on the brink of going in.

And this one is out of here as John Greenway knocks this one off the green.

"Fore!" Matt Hauser sends this one to the sand.

Over the net or in the net

Two teams concerned with nets were soccer and tennis.

The soccer team's season opened against Lake Taylor was delayed because of the weather, which also caused other games to be rescheduled.

"Playing soccer is a challenge, especially since I play with the guys," sophomore Jennifer Lyons said. "It just makes you work even harder. Plus, it's a lot better than football!" she added. WHS probably had more girls on its team than any other in the district.

Rusty Williams and Jeremy Smith said that they play soccer because it's fun. "It keeps me in shape," Williams added. "It's also a challenging sport," Smith added.

Other players chose tennis.

Brett Morgan and Abe Rivera agreed that tennis is a fun and challenging sport. "I like the one-on-one competition," Rivera added. It's just you and him — no refs, no teammates, no one to tell you what to do."

Karen Morgan: "When I pitched a no-hitter my ninth-grade year."

Scott Reaves

Ebony Freeman: "Last year I made MVP, and I'm looking forward to doing better. I hope to get a scholarship for college."

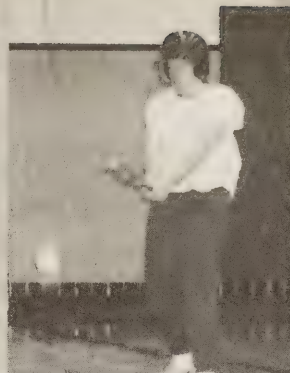

Daniel Griffin: "My first win as a pitcher in the eighth grade. We were losing by four runs in the last inning. Our team rallied for five runs to beat Lafayette by one."

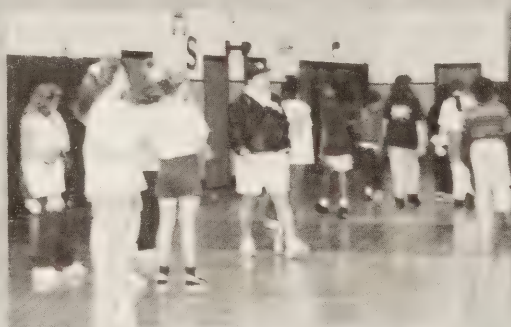

Karen Ubada: "Against FHS, that was the best game I pitched. I struck out 13, and we won the game."

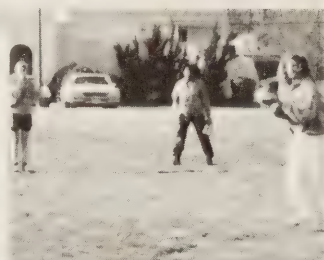

Batting practice with the pitching machine allows Karen Morgan to be critiqued on her skills.

Listening intently to Coach Denmark, the softball team finds out what their next practice activity will entail.

Practicing fielding maneuvers, Nicole Privette leads the group to get the ground ball.

Bringing it home

Led by captain Scott Williams, the varsity baseball team had only a few players new to baseball try out. Several advanced from JV. Juniors Kevin Hudgins and Daryl Brandon are both in their second year of varsity.

"The loss of key senior players will take its toll on our performance, but I think we will still have a winning season," Scott Williams said. The team was coached by Mr. John Wright.

The JV baseball players were led in stretches and warm-ups by Scott Reaves and Gabe Everman. The team was coached by Mr. Dwayne Peters.

The girls' softball team had only a varsity team; eighth-graders were ineligible to play as in baseball. "The unity of the team helps us to work well together," Karen Morgan said.

"The return of pitchers Karen Ubeda and Karen Morgan guarantees the team will have a good season," Brian Morgan, manager, said.

The team was coached by Mr. Mike Denmark.

Work and play after school

Students were an active part of our community, not just socially but in the work field as well. For example, 20 juniors and seniors were employed by our school's Cooperative Office Education program. C.O.E. helped them to make a transition from student to employee and meet an identified career objective. One member of C.O.E., Abe Rivera, was employed by accountant Dave Riker, C.P.A.P.C. Rivera got valuable business experience in the accounting field as well as working as an office assistant trainee. "My C.O.E. job gives me an excellent opportunity to gather more hands-on experience in my career field," Rivera said.

Socially, students enjoyed a variety of things. Many looked forward to the weekend for the time with their friends to party or just hang out. This helped relieve the stress of the long and hard school week. "Spending time with your friends on the weekend is a great way to relax from the pressures of school," Heather Shaffer said. Others did things with their church groups; others did nothing at all. "We enjoy collecting clothing items for the needy with our church group," said Laura Camacho and Connie Brown. Or as Brian Morgan put it, "On the weekends, I sleep, watch football, and beat up my brother." Everyone was unique, but we all did things in our community, even if it was for just one moment.

Awaiting for the announcement of her name, sophomore Merika Lewis stands with her escort, Isaac Randolph, for the 1994 Homecoming Court.

In the business department Abe Rivera looks over papers for the C.O.E. program while Mrs. Cooper answers the phone for an important business call.

Preparing for a march, Jerry Gonzalez, Melani Burkett, and David Johnson get ready for the Pettlers Village Christmas Parade.

"Congratulations!" SCA sponsor Mrs. Sharon Williams congratulates the 1993 Homecoming Queen, Kenya Warren.

Far from Home

Every year WHS hosts foreign exchange students, who most recently came from Germany and Thailand. "The people are really nice," Christian Seifert, exchange student from Germany, said. "Here we have six classes. In Germany we have all different classes every day. There are no lockers, drink machines, or phones in German schools," Seifert added. After his return to Germany, Seifert said that he plans to return to the U.S.

"American schools start very early in the morning, and being on time is very strict," Weerapon Chuwong, exchange student from Thailand, said. "Here you can't be late, but in schools in Thailand time is not very important. You can go anywhere without a pass. The weather is always changing here, but in Thailand it's always hot," Chuwong added. After returning to Thailand, Chuwong said that he "might come back later to finish high school in Washington state or the New England area."

Sharing opinions right before 5th period marketing are Craig Yarborough and German exchange student Christian Seifert.

Listening intently as the judge explains a point is Caroline Taylor.

Answering one of the judge's questions is Amy Cox.

Trying not to be nervous, Theresa Wells presents her project to the judges.

Excelling in science

A science project was something every student had to do. It was designed to teach the student how to do a science experiment by themselves. Although not all students enjoyed doing a project, many did appreciate what they gained from the experience.

The Science Fair was a yearly chance for science students to get together with their projects in the same place where they could present and discuss their efforts with fellow classmates, teachers, and judges, who had the tough job of rating and ranking the projects.

What did students have to say about being a part of the Science Fair? "Honored," Kim Polarek said.

"It's my first time being in the Science Fair, and I really enjoyed it," Lavonta Henderson said.

"It's a good experience," said Amy Cox. "It helps you see other projects," she added.

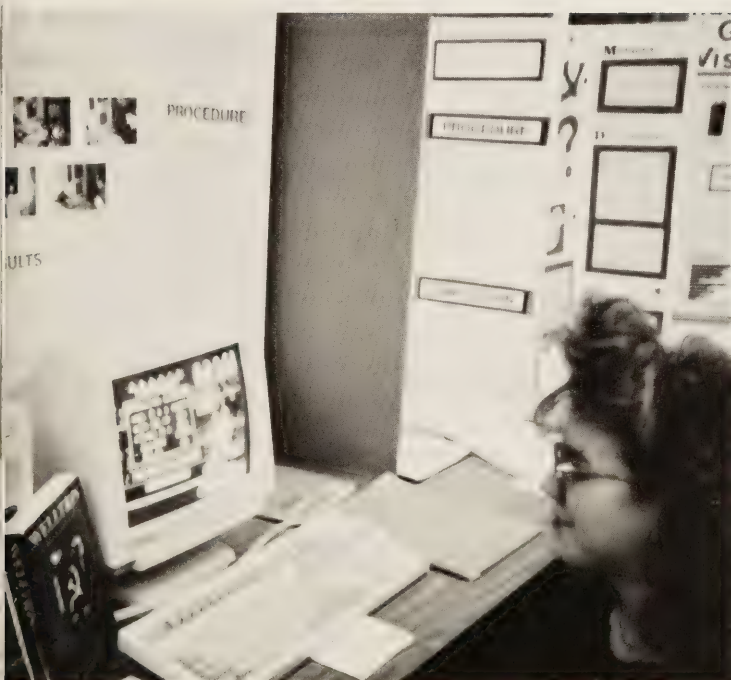

"It was a great experience for me this school year in America," Weerapon Chuwong, foreign exchange student, said.

"I think that being in the Science Fair gives you opportunities to see what the other students have done, and it helps me think about future science experiments," Nikki Chase said.

"It's interesting and educational," David Johnson said. "It's long and hard to do a science project, but it pays off in the end," he added.

Behind the scenes

The hidden staff of Warwick High School finally came out in the light. "We are here for the students, number one, the teachers, number two, and the public, number three," Clarence French, head custodian, said.

In May of 1990, the WHS custodial staff won a plaque and a cup for being named "The Best Cleaning and Management Team in the School Division."

The Newport News School Cleanliness Contest occurred three times during each school year. Each school was judged by the general upkeep of the building, grounds, restrooms, athletic parking lots, classrooms, and floors.

"We are going to try to win the award for cleanest school," Mr. French said.

Ethelyne Wilkins retired after 29 years of custodial work. She started at Gatewood Elementary. "My best time was when I moved to WHS," she said, "because the other school was dirty."

What's for lunch? Eunice Ricks and Louise Keene discuss tomorrow's menu.

Sweeping the floors puts a big smile on Bill Jones face.

Retiring after her 29th year, Ethelyne Wilkins stands proudly.

 Mr. Robert L. Eley, Master Barber

Thank-you! Thank-you! Thank-you!

From the adviser, Mr. Tom Stroup

First of all, my staff must be applauded for their hard work and enthusiasm. Returning this year were editors Eve Butler and Celest Powell along with assistant editor Brian Morgan.

Joining us for both semesters were Megan Dandois, senior section editor; Shannon Phillips, business manager; and Gabrielle Brown, Laura Camacho, Diane Draper, Andrea Drew, Vonda Henderson, Katie King, Donna Murray, Olivia Neiser, Nikki Perkins, Mian Porter, Heather Shaffer, and Jennifer Waits.

Working with us until the end of first semester were Connie Brown, Christine Cuffe, Keasha Floyd, Javonne Hall, and Derrick Russell.

Joining us second semester were Jennifer Adams, Jennifer Foster, Rachel Lambert, Letaunia McCadden, Jennifer Onks, and Jennifer Shepherd.

Special thanks to Megan Dandois for getting additional spot color via a contribution from the senior class. Thank you, Class of '94, for your help, and thanks to your adviser, Mrs. I. Lee. Megan also did an outstanding job in designing the senior section on a Macintosh computer, using Pagemaker. Her layout designs, photography, and writing are among the best and most sophisticated in the book.

Special thanks to Shannon Phillips, who sold more ads than all other students combined. She was invaluable.

I appreciated the hard of Brian Morgan and Donna Murray, who accepted whatever assignment given and always carried it to completion, doing whatever was necessary to get the job done. I could always count on them.

I want to thank the parents of my staff members for their behind-the-scenes help with typing and for their patience and understanding when we were pressed to complete a deadline.

Thanks to all those who answered our calls for help especially Mr. Way, Mrs. Alfred, Mrs. Krause, Ms. Lamberton, Mr. Evans, Mrs. Holman, Mrs. Sharon Williams, Commander Wheeler, Mrs. Bonnie Lowe, Mr. Tom Gardner, Mr. Holmes, guidance counselors, teachers, coaches, club sponsors and officers. We could not have done it without your input and cooperation.

Thanks to our school photographer, Tom Knox of Lifetouch, and thanks to our Herff Jones representative, Tony Beverage. Both were always professional, supportive, and positive.

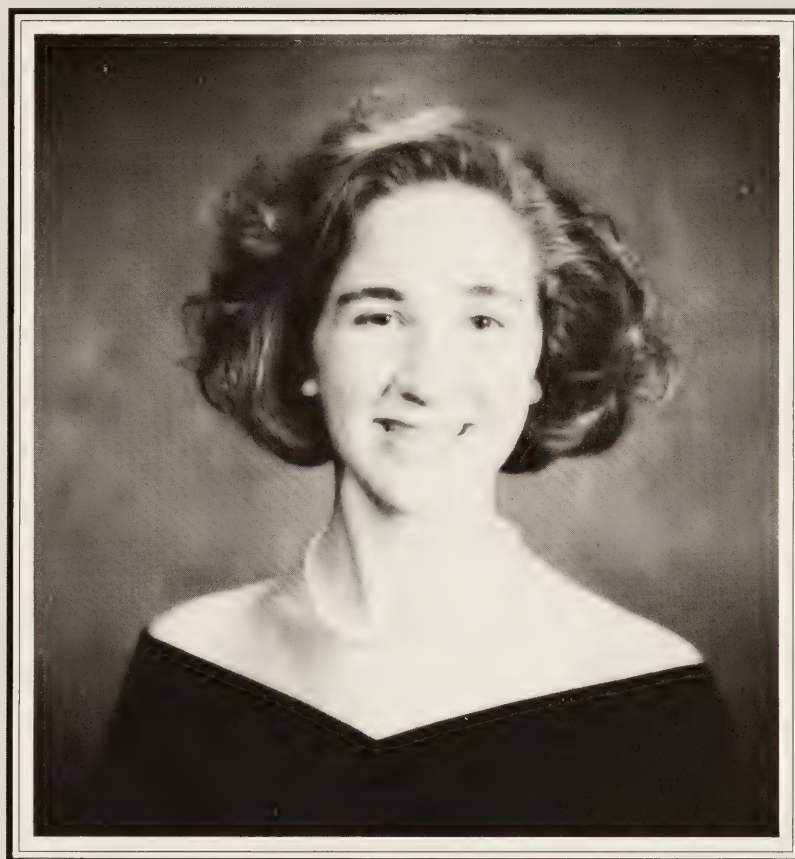

The staff also wished to thank David Henderson, Mark Johnson, Jane Butler, Dillon Bingham, Carole Kekipi, Maggie Brown, and Coaches Lewis, Moore, Lyons, Peters, Lilley, Worthington, Ross, and Danley.

What I enjoyed most as yearbook adviser was the opportunity to work with creative, talented students I might not have otherwise met in a regular English class. I am particularly indebted to Catherine Winfrey, who was my editor during her sophomore and junior years and who continued in her senior year to be a source of ideas and inspiration. I have never worked with a finer student in my 20 years as a teacher.

Choosing to end my tenure as yearbook adviser after five years, I can now look forward to having more time to share with my patient, loving, and inspiring wife, Angela.

Finally, I would like to thank every student who bought our yearbook. All of our work was for you, to help you preserve the special memories of your life at Warwick High School.

JUST ONE MOMENT . . .
When you stand all alone
At the top of your class

CATHERINE LAYNE WINFREY

Just one moment we'll never forget

New principals, teachers, rules
A new "look," a new attitude
Meeting a new friend
The pep rally: "Be a Raider!"
Homecoming: the assembly, the court, winning the game, the dance
Being the "best": nominated, inducted, scoring the most, winning the game,
District champ, going to Regionals and State, receiving an award
The Senior Banquet, the Superlatives
The snow! (no school)
The Ring Dance
The Prom and After-Prom party
Exams (ugh!)
Moving up one grade
Graduation, the "Alma Mater"
Facing the future
But remembering the past,
A collection of memories,
Each, just one moment
We'll never forget
